Seinet has launched a new version of its Xtent Publishing Suite, a fully web-enabled publishing platform featuring content management and cross-media workflows. Version 6.0 includes a new flatplan tool that enables users to plan a publication and then see that publication through its production.

Flatplans can be easily generated into publications, with all pages remaining synchronised to the plan should any adjustments be made. Advertising space can also be reserved to specific requirements, while editors can freely assign articles and layouts to any page. A simple drag-and-drop feature allows pages to be moved around and commentaries can be added in the form of notes.

Seinet has further enhanced its web publisher module with better control of HTML zones and plug-ins for open-source web content management tools such as WordPress. The software is based around Adobe's InDesign, with the latest version compatible with the InDesign CS4 platform.
